

Sin 101

Lesson 5

Anger

PART I EXPLANATION

Introduction: The sin of anger is one that few people consider themselves to have a problem with, yet it is a great cause of division and discord in our relationships with others. The failure to deal with anger opens the door for the devil to wreak havoc in the home, the church, or amongst friends. The Bible expects us to control our anger. We are to be angry without sinning by being angry at the right things. Acceptable anger is defending God and His character from defamation or disgrace. It is to be offended at what God is offended at, sin. The Person most associated with anger in the Bible is God Himself. The Bible mentions Him as being angry over two hundred times. The difficulty is that we are very easily deceived by the true cause of our animosity.

It is easy to get frustrated and angry with those around us for the wrong reason. When others are disobedient or rebellious it is natural to get angry. However, we must determine whether our anger is because of the harm it will bring to them, because it is an offense to God, or because it affects or reflects negatively upon ourselves. Too often the cause of our anger is driven by selfishness and pride. For example, when children are disobedient it is easy to get angry at their behavior. But is our anger because of concern for their well being or because we are frustrated with the inconvenience? Another way children cause anger is when their bad behavior reflects negatively upon our parenting. In each case our anger is not justified but rather selfish.

Another example is when someone does something that offends us. When we are injured by their words or their actions it is easy to be “offended,” which is another source of anger. This is usually the result of someone not treating us the way that we feel we deserve to be treated. There will inevitably be instances when we are treated improperly and in these instances we must learn to deal with them in a proper way. The Bible expects us to confront anger. We are not to allow anger to fester like a volcano that will eventually erupt. Anger is easy to detect in someone that blows sky high when they are upset. However, different people have different ways of displaying anger. The best way to detect anger is to monitor the tone of our voice and the tenor of our words. Even those who don’t explode can release anger by grievous words or by having an “attitude” toward the object of their anger. Anger is difficult to detect because we are so successful at convincing ourselves that we are not offended and have no problem with anyone. This quickly and easily leads to bitterness, which develops over time when anger is not dealt with properly. The Bible tells us not to allow the “sun to go down upon our wrath” but to confront it.

Webster’s definition of anger is a passion of the mind excited by a real or supposed injury. Often anger and bitterness can develop in churches and families over injustices that were not even genuine. Rather they come from something that was “taken wrong” or was a complete misunderstanding. By confronting the situation it eliminates these supposed injustices that are not genuine and also deals with genuine injustices before the Devil can magnify them.

The final thing the Bible expects is for us to not concede anger. As mentioned above, the failure to properly deal with anger gives opportunity to the Devil to sow discord among friends and families. He is a master at taking “supposed” injuries and magnifying them into colossal conflicts. We have a duty to not allow the Devil the opportunity to destroy the home or church.

Definitions: For English use the Webster’s 1828 Dictionary and copy all appropriate definitions for each word. For the Greek and Hebrew use a Strong’s Concordance and copy the definition. The Strong’s number is in parenthesis.

Quotation:

“It is the great duty of all Christians to put off anger. It unfits for duty...A man cannot wrestle with God and wrangle with his neighbor at the same time. Short sins often cost us long and sad sorrows.” Philip Henry

“It is the base and vile bramble, the fruit of the earth’s curse, that tears and rends what is next to it.” Thomas Adams

“The angry man, like the two hot disciples that called fire from heaven, ordains himself the judge, and would have God turn his executioner.” Thomas Adams

“He that will be angry, and not sin, must not be angry but for sin.” John Trapp

“Be soonest angry with thyself.” Thomas Fuller

“Anger should not be destroyed but sanctified.” William Jenkyn
